FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Westminster, May 9.

THIS day his Majesty came to the House of Peers, and being in his Royal robes seated on the throne with the usual solemnity, Mr. Quarme, Usher of the Black Rod, was sent with a message from his Majesty to the House of Commons, commanding their attendance in the House of Peers. The Commons being come thither accordingly, his Majesty was pleased to give the Royal assent to 15 acts passed this session.

After which his Majesty was pleased to make the following most gracious SPEECH:

My Lords, and Gentlemen,

HAVING thought it necessary to give so early a commencement to the present session of Parliament, I am glad to find, that by your zeal and assiduity in the dispatch of the public business, I am now enabled to relieve you from your attendance, before the season of the year is too far advanced.

I cannot put an end to the session, without expressing my entire approbation of your conduct, [illegible] assurance to the true interest of their country.

It was with much satisfaction that I observed your particular attention to those great national objects, which, at the opening of the session, I recommended to your more immediate consideration. The result of your deliberations, respecting the late acquisitions in the East-Indies, has shewn, that you were not more attentive to the immediate benefit arising therefrom in point of revenue, than to the securing, at all events, the permanent commercial interest of this country, and guarding against every possible discouragement to our own manufactures, and to the industry of my subjects. What more remains to be done, for securing the possession of those valuable acquisitions, you will, I doubt not, proceed to provide for, with all convenient dispatch, at your next meeting.

The measures which I had taken, regarding the late unhappy disturbances in North-America, have been already laid before you. They have received your approbation; and you have added new proof of your firm support in the prosecution of them. Nothing, in my opinion, could be more likely to establish the well disposed among my subjects, in that part of the world, effectually to discourage and defeat [illegible] my own determination, as well as the assurances given me by the other powers of Europe, continue the same as I communicated to you at the beginning of this session; and, however unsuccessful my attempts have proved for preventing the unfortunate rupture which has happened between Russia and the Porte, I shall not fail to use my good offices towards restoring peace between those powers; and I trust, that the calamities of war will not extend to any other part of Europe.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

My particular thanks are due to you, as well for the supplies which you have granted me for the services of the current year, as for the provision which [illegible] I shall ever consider [illegible] and motive for me to endeavour to [illegible] advantages at my civil government within [illegible] as the source of my Crown can [illegible]

My Lords and Gentlemen,

It gives me great [illegible] to be obliged to recommend to you, [illegible] ordinary expenses, that you will [illegible] several counties, exert your utmost [illegible] balance of public peace, and [illegible] among my people. You must be sensible, that whatever obstructs, in any degree, the [illegible] of the laws, or weakens the authority of the magistrate, must affect the only security, which my people can have for the undisturbed enjoyment of their rights and liberties. From your [illegible] I promise myself [illegible] On my part, no consideration [illegible] be wanting for as I have ever [illegible] shall make, our excellent constitution [illegible] my own conduct, so shall I always consider [illegible] equally my duty to exert every power, with which that constitution has entrusted me, [illegible] is free from opinion of every kind [illegible] convinced, that in so doing, I shall [illegible] provide for the interest and happiness [illegible]

Every inhabitant is ordered to keep two tons of water at least in his possession. It is said that the soldiers of the regiment of Schirki, at Petrikaw, when ordered to attack the Confederates, fired upon their officers, 11 of whom were killed, and most of them wounded dangerously. There is great reason to fear some [illegible] will follow their example.

LONDON, May 8.

We hear the strictest search is making into all the records of antiquity, for precedents by which a matter depending this day is to be conducted.

We hear the Ministry are in high spirits on their victory over the Livery.

A conspiracy has been very lately discovered, which will bring to light many enormous and iniquitous transactions, and the parties to justice.

In a speech lately made by an eminent Council, who always carries conviction along with him, respecting the discretional power to be vested in a certain person, who holds a very considerable place under the government in one of our North-American colonies, to apprehend, and send over to be tried here, such people as he imagines have transgressed the laws of their country in the late commotions there, either by stirring up sedition promoting insurrections, attempting to raise rebellion, or in any way endeavouring to weaken or throw off the legislative authority of the Mother country over her colonies in America: It was declared by him to be an unconstitutional law, which could neither be [illegible] conformable to the [illegible] of the subject, nor [illegible] constitution, no one can be put upon his trial, before a bill is found by a Grand Jury: Therefore, how can one person, or any set of persons however respectable, who have no juridical authority, delegate to one man the power of putting another upon his trial, without making a most audacious and unconstitutional breach in our excellent and unparalleled mode of trial; and a violation of the great charter, on which alone the freedom and privileges of Englishmen hinge; for there it is expressly said, in that remarkable chapter emphatically stiled, The Golden Charter, that every person must undergo a trial by two juries, who must both agree in finding him guilty before he can be convicted.

It is conjectured that some disagreeable advices are shortly expected from the continent.

We hear that one of the new made Justices of the county of Surry, gave an entertainment to near thirty of his brethren, at the Three Tons tavern in Southwark, on Friday last. After dinner, the chairman of the quarter sessions reflected with great asperity on the Supporters of the Bill of Rights, and said, "They were all a set of contemptible fellows." In consequence of which, a certain popular Baronet, who has been chairman of that society immediately [illegible]

It is thought that there is more French cambrick ſmuggled now in London than there has been for many years.

It is ſaid that the tax, of which the Americans ſo loudly complain, after deducting all expences attending the collection of it, amounts to no more than about four hundred and fifty pounds per annum.

Laſt Sunday ſe'nnight, in the evening, a fire broke out in the county of Devon, which deſtroyed upwards of 200 dwelling-houſes. All the beſt part of the town (generally called Weſt-Town) is reduced to aſhes, from the top of Bowden-hill, to the corn-market, and all Back-lane, including bake-houſes, as well as thoſe in front, for about three-eighths of a mile. The fire began at Putman's bake-houſe, and every thing being very dry, and the wind high, the ſtreets were on fire on both ſides immediately. The fire continued burning from Sunday night to Tueſday morning. Monday evening a large body of ſoldiers marched from

The part of a late ſpeech which reſpects the affairs of America, has thrown the friends of the Americans into a general panic, as it beſpeaks a no lenient attention towards them.

When his Majeſty's ſpeech was read on Tueſday night in a certain company, they were ſo diſappointed at not finding any mention made of ſome late inſults, that one or two of them could not help muttering, "He takes no notice of us!" and were quite chop-fallen the whole evening.

May 16. There is a report that the ſoldier who ſhot young Allen, and was permitted to leave the army, was lately condemned and executed for ſtealing a cow in the north of Scotland.

May 17. It is reported, that on Thurſday laſt, the Lord-Chancellor received a ſummons to attend the Privy Council on the Friday following, it being ſtrongly then expected at court, that the petition of grievances and apprehenſions would have been preſented to the King on that day. But as this report had gained credit, and great numbers of people were attending about St. James's, in order to accompa[illegible] the proceſſion, the Gentlemen appointed by the Great care is taken in comparing the liſt of the freeholders with the names upon the petition, as no names will be ſuffered to remain, but of thoſe who appear to have a right of voting for a member for the county. This ſcrutiny has been the principal occaſion of the delay in preſenting it.

Mr. Serjeant Glynn continues much indiſpoſed with the gout, but he has declared that nothing ſhall prevent his preſenting the petition of the Freeholders, and fulfilling every duty he owes to his country and conſtituents.

May 18. By letters from Corſica, we are informed, that General Paoli, in an aſſembly which he held laſt month, told his countrymen, "That before the month of July next, if they behaved properly, they would probably be their own maſters; at the ſame time adviſing them to take whatever ſteps they liked beſt; but that, for his own part, he was determined to defend his country to the laſt drop of his blood, in conjunction with four or five thouſand ſelect friends, whoſe courage and fidelity he could depend on."

It is ſaid that General Paoli has lately numbered the inhabitants of [illegible] and that he found younger.

It is now ſaid, that notwithſtanding the preſent exultations, the friends of liberty will ſhortly appear with ſuch eclat as will aſtoniſh all Europe.

By ſeveral private letters come in Capt. Salmon, from Gentlemen in London, to their correſpondents here, we are aſſured, there had appeared great diſpoſitions in the Parliament to repeal the late revenue act, could they have done it conſiſtent with their own pretenſions;—and they further ſay, that it will be repealed the next ſeſſions, on condition the Americans behave with ſubmiſſion, and acknowledge their right of taxation;—But if thoſe be the terms, the ſtruggle will not be ſo ſoon over; for though the colonies always have been, and are now, all ſubmiſſive, yet it is hoped they never will yield an unconſtitutional obedience.——Capt. Davis, in the ſhip Hope, was to ſail in a day or two after Capt. Salmon, and we hear he has twenty thouſand pounds ſterl. in caſh on board, for the uſe of the King's forces in theſe parts; an article wanted more than goods at this time. WILLIAMSBURG, Auguſt 3.

To Meſſ. John Wilſon and Gabriel Jones.

The ADDRESS of the Freeholders of Augusta county

GENTLEMEN,

WHEN you were elected to repreſent us in the laſt General Aſſembly, the ſituation of our affairs reſpecting Great-Britain was critical; and we ſuppoſed that ſundry matters of the utmoſt importance, would come under your conſideration. And ſince the conduct of the late Houſe of Burgeſſes hath cauſed their diſſolution, we think it proper thus to addreſs you.

When we firſt explored theſe deſert mountains the love of freedom, and the hope of enjoying the property [illegible] enced with cruel oppreſſion. The privilege of being taxed only by our own Aſſemblies, and of being tried in all criminal caſes by a jury drawn from the vicinage, as well as petitioning our Sovereign for redreſs of grievances, we have ever conſidered as the birthright of every Britiſh ſubject. Theſe are our deareſt rights; and if we ſurvive the loſs of them, we ſhall thenceforward conſider ourſelves, not as Britiſh ſubjects, but Britiſh ſlaves.

Truly ſenſible therefore of the importance of that depoſit with which you, Gentlemen, were lately intruſted, it is with the higheſt pleaſure we obſerve, that your conduct was wiſe, ſteady, ſpirited, and loyal. You have ſhewed yourſelves worthy to be the guardians and partakers of that liberty, which we, and our Anceſtors have eſteemed above every earthly bleſſing.

We thank you, Gentlemen, moſt ſincerely, for the faithful diſcharge of your duty as our Repreſentatives. We moſt heartily concur in your votes and reſolves. Your addreſs to our Gracious Sovereign, ſpeaks the ſentiments of our hearts.

After having done every thing that became you as our Repreſentatives, as men and members of the [illegible] great good.

We are not without hopes, that his Lordſhip our good Governor, may be inſtrumental in reſtoring harmony, and a good agreement between Great Britain and her colonies, for which he will deſerve unfading honours. That the bleſſings of civil and religious liberty may be long continued to America, and to every part of the wide extended Britiſh empire, we ſhall moſt fervently beg of him, who is the ſupreme Lord of Lords, and King of Kings.

[illegible] ſcarr, when it will certainly be drawn, the managers having now obliged themſelves to take the tickets that ſhall then be unſold on their own account. And as their riſque may be great, by taking ſo large a number of tickets as may be then on hand, it is thought beſt to promote the ſale of them, during the drawing, by making the following alterations in the ſcheme, viz.—One of the prizes for 250l. is to belong to the proprietor of the ticket whoſe number ſhall be drawn the one thouſandth—the other 250l. to belong to the proprietor of the ticket whoſe number ſhall be drawn the two thouſandth—and the 500l. to belong to the proprietor of the ticket whoſe number ſhall be laſt drawn.

It is evident, that this alteration cannot affect the chance of any of the adventurers; but to avoid all poſſible objections from any who have become adventurers upon the faith of the preſent ſcheme, it is intended that any [perſon] who ſhall diſapprove of the alteration, may be at liberty to return their tickets to the perſon they had them of, at any time before the laſt day of September next.
